UM faculty may seek job protection through unionization

By Mark Cerkovnik
Montana Kaimin Reporter

There is growing sentiment among the UM faculty to create a system of collective bargaining to secure salary increases, protect themselves from arbitrary administrative actions such as dismissal or reassignment of work and provide themselves with a more effective means of influencing administrative decisions.

The probability that the faculty would choose the American Federation of Teachers (AFT), which is affiliated with the AFL-CIO as its collective bargaining agent is also growing. In the last year the AFT has gained 85 members among the UM faculty.

According to John Van de Wetering, chairman of the history department and state American Association of University Professors (AAUP) president, a bill that would enable the faculty to bargain collectively was introduced to the legislature yesterday by Rep. Pat McKittrick, D-Great Falls. The AAUP originated the bill and consulted with the AFT on its drafting.

Van de Wetering said the AAUP and the AFT would not pursue the bill because of a resolution passed Monday by the Board of Regents. The resolution requested that faculty organizations refrain from pursuing collective bargaining enabling legislation for one year while the issues are resolved by the regents, presidents and faculties.

In exchange for halting their drive for the enabling legislation, the regents agreed to request that the administration form a committee. It would meet with a faculty committee to identify issues that would need resolution if collective bargaining were instituted and try to settle those issues informally.

Van de Wetering said bargaining could begin "in the few weeks" if the faculty decides they want to bargain under the resolution. He said, "It is our hope that the faculty will work through the regents' resolution."

Gary Gallagher, member of the board of regents, said he is in favor of collective bargaining for the faculty. "If the faculty decides that they want it," He said however, "I would prefer that they would not go into a union mode of bargaining."

Gallagher said he opposed union bargaining because "The legislature appropriated just so much money. I don't see how a union is going to get more money from the legislature."

John Lawry, philosophy professor and AFT local president, said, "A number of professors feel they will have to look out for themselves more than they have in the past." He said events in neighboring states have caused some faculty members to worry about their rights as employees. He said Idaho is trying to strike down faculty rights in general and revoke tenure rights in particular.

Lawry said many faculty members wish to see University resources used more efficiently. He said that the money spent on athletics would be far better spent on the library or capital budget. Lawry said the capital budget is about one-fourth of what it was in 1968.

Lawry said the University had lost 10 positions in the last three years and that the faculty was disturbed about the loss.

Deadline brings raft of legislation

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena

Legislation poured into the Senate hopper today as senators sought to meet the deadline for introduction of bills. One hundred ten pieces of proposed law were filed, including a landlord-tenant bill sponsored by Sen. Luke McKeon, D-Anaconda and two measures designed to define abortion, submitted by Sen. Jim Moore, R-Two Dot, and Sen. William McNamer, R-Billings.

Yesterday was the last day to file non-appropriation and non-revenue bills. Legislators have five more days to file money bills.

McKeon's Uniform Residential Landlord and Tenant Act sets specific standards for landlords, tenant responsibilities and means of mitigating problems that arise between landlord and tenant.

The bill, SB 673, contains provisions that:

- Assure landlord-tenant transactions will be done in good faith, that is, one will not attempt to mislead or take unfair advantage of the other.
- Limit the amount the landlord can ask for a security deposit to the equivalent of one month rent.
- Require the landlord to maintain rented housing in "good and safe working order and condition."

- Give the tenant the right to terminate a contract, do repairs personally and deduct the cost from the rent or seek help from the courts.

- Establish standards for the tenant, including health and safety obligations.

- Allow landlord to terminate rental agreements, charge unnecessary repair costs to tenant, or take legal action if the tenant does not meet the provisions of the law.

- Forbids the landlord from retaliation by increasing rent or decreasing services if the tenant complains to the landlord or government agency about inadequacies or housing code violations or if the renter joins a tenant's union.

Two strict abortion laws were introduced. The most comprehensive bill sponsored by McNamer, allows doctors and hospitals to refuse to participate in abortions and requires doctors to furnish the complete record of an abortion to the state Department of Health. The bill also provides for confidentiality of the records, McNamer said.

Under the bill, doctors performing an abortion on a minor must notify her parents or guardians.

Work-study bill to provide for state financed program

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau

Helena

Rep. Max Baucus introduced a work-study bill yesterday providing for a state program financed with state and federal funds.

The bill sets the work-study program for post-secondary schools under the administration of the Board of Regents.

Baucus said that 70 per cent of the funds will be used for students in financial need and the remaining 30 per cent will be awarded to students interested in a particular program which furthers their scholastic education.

Federal funds are available to finance about three-quarters of the program, Baucus said. Employers are also required to contribute no less than 30 per cent of the student's wages. The minimum wage set by law has to be paid by the employers, the bill adds.

The program provides that students could work in public agencies or non-profit private organizations under a system similar to the federal work-study program.

Another bill affecting universities would provide that no person 55 years of age or older would be required to pay resident tuition in the university system.

McNamer told a reporter his measure would define abortion of a viable fetus—one in the third trimester of development—as homicide.

The Board of Regents may give university system presidents the power to withhold student documents—grades—until the student pays his or her traffic fines if SB 712 is enacted. Sens. Fred Carl and Harry Northey, both Missoula Republicans, are sponsoring the bill by request.

Regan determined to keep ERA alive

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau,

Helena

Rep. Ann "Pat" Regan, D-Billings, is determined not to let the Equal Rights Amendment die in limbo. She introduced into the House yesterday a second joint resolution to ratify the proposed 27th amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Last Saturday the House voted 79 to 19 to reject an amendment to HJR 4, the first joint resolution calling for ERA ratification. The Senate had proposed the amendment which called for a referendum of the people in an advisory vote on the ERA.

In rejecting the amendment to the equal rights amendment the House called for a conference committee with the Senate to try and iron out difficulties. Speaker of the House Harold Gerke, D-Billings, appointed three ERA advocates to the committee, Regan as chairwoman, and Reps. Bill Norman, D-Missoula and Ruth Castles, R-Helena.

An attempt by ERA opponent Sen. Jack McDonald, D-Belt, to not appoint a Senate conference committee was ruled out of order by the Senate Rules Committee. The Senate Majority Leader, Neil Lynch, D-Butte, appointed two ERA opponents, McDonald and Sen. Jean Turnage, R-Polson, and ERA proponent Pat Gilfeather, D-Great Falls to a conference committee. Gilfeather heads the Senate committee.

The joint conference is set for today at 10 a.m. If the committees cannot agree, or have at least two persons from each house agree, each committee will present its own report to their respective legislative body. The ERA might end up in limbo, if the Senate conference committee report upholds the idea of the referendum and the House conference committee report rejects the referendum idea.

The House also could move that another conference committee be appointed. However, one representative said the Senate rules committee decision that a conference committee had to be appointed if one house appointed a conference committee might be fulfilled upon Senate appointment of at least one committee.

In other words, if the Senate decided it had fulfilled its obligation to appoint a conference committee, it would not have to appoint another committee even if the House appointed one.

If no agreement is reached in the joint conference committee and if the Senators file a report to stand by the referendum, the matter would be in limbo, except for Rep. Regan's second house joint resolution to ratify the ERA.

Rep. Regan maintains that the amendment to put the ERA before the people through a referendum is illegal. She says the U.S. Constitution requires amendments to be ratified by the state legislature and that a referendum is not applicable.

This line of attack is what she said she will use to persuade the senators to drop the referendum amendment.

The new ERA resolution was dropped into the hopper to show the Senate that the House is tired of no action on the ERA, she said.

Another bill, which Regan introduced yesterday, would "sanction" either house that refuses to appoint a conference committee when the other house has appointed one. The new bill is not exactly to put pressure on the senators, but rather is to fill a loophole now present in the procedure rules, Regan said.

The committees can report to the respective houses at the discretion of the chairpersons and the votes to accept or reject committee reports could possibly be today, tomorrow or Monday.

Montana's door open to pornography, Moe says

By Lynn Morrison
Montana Kaimin Reporter

"The door is now wide open for the pushers of filth to flood Montana with all forms of hard-core pornography," according to Missoula County Sheriff John Moe.

Moe said in a press release yesterday that "topless, bottomless, nude or even live homosexual acts and movies before adult audiences in taverns, hotels, night clubs, or anywhere else, are legal as long as persons under 18 years of age are not knowingly and purposely involved or the obscene material is not visible from the streets."

Moe predicts this will "encourage deviate sexual conduct, assaults on women, massage parlors and prostitution."

Missoula could now legally have bookstores with hard-core pornography and movie theaters similar to Studio 1, under the revised criminal code of Montana, which was adopted during the last legislative session and became law Jan. 1. Studio 1, an allegedly pornographic theater, and three Missoula bookstores were raided and materials were confiscated by the Missoula County Sheriff's office and city police. Studio 1 was subsequently forced to close and the management left town.

Missoula County Attorney Robert Deschamps said the Montana legislature has set standards of "essentially anything goes." The only limitations placed on material is if it is utterly without socially redeeming value, offends contemporary community standards or if the dominant theme appeals to prurient interests.

Deschamps said the press has created misconceptions as to what contemporary community standards are. The U.S. Supreme Court last June left the definition of what is obscene up to the community. This has been misconstrued to mean what each local official considered obscene, according to Deschamps, but community standards are actually determined by the attitudes of a local jury trying an obscenity case.

He said the county has no authority at this time to determine what is obscene.

Deschamps said the December incident at the Longhorn bar involving the Missoula Mavericks occurred under the old code and would have been considered illegal if rumors are true, but no evidence could be obtained and he could not find anyone willing to testify or admit they were there so no action was taken.

Moe said his office could not act in this instance because it was a "fly by night situation." He added that there was insufficient time for investigation and he did not find out about the party until it was almost over.

Moe thinks the new Montana law could be in conflict with a federal statute which makes it a felony to transport obscene materials in interstate or foreign commerce for the purpose of sale or distribution.

He has asked for public outcry to the Legislature protesting the liberalized law in hopes of changing or amending it.

Deschamps said he was afraid this sort of outcry would "mobalize little old ladies" and the laws would probably be changed. He said the basically conservative legislature could create more restrictions than were under the old law. He said the new statute was basically good.

A travesty of justice

On Dec. 12, 1973, the United States Supreme Court obliterated the Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. In a 6-3 decision, the court ruled that law enforcement officials can search individuals arrested, and any incriminating evidence that is found, whether it relates to the original arrest or not, is admissible in court.

In other words, if a certain police force we all know wants to bust you—but they don't have enough evidence to get a search warrant—they can bust you for a traffic offense, arrest you, search you and, if you happen to have a joint on you, bust you for both offenses. The joint would be used against you in court.

The once-great Fourth Amendment reads: "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no warrant shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by an oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

That grand string of words would appear to override the mistake made by the Supreme Court, but six of the justices apparently didn't think so. Their mentality was quite obvious. In a concurring statement to the majority statement, Lewis Powell, a Nixon appointee, said "an individual lawfully subjected to custodial arrest retains no significant interest in the privacy of his person."

Decisions like this must make Sheriff Moe and his band of merry men rub their hands with glee. The rest of us, however, must be satisfied with chills down the spine.

The decision is a travesty of justice, a direct affront to the Constitution and a despicable act by a group of assumedly intelligent men.

Join the struggle for a better University

Much has been accomplished through the efforts of many people associated with the many programs that ASUM supports. Program Council has brought new vitality to University entertainment with some phenomenal presentations. Campus Recreation is working very hard to meet the many recreational needs of the students with new programs ranging from cross-country skiing, avalanche seminars, field trips to a wrist wrestling championship for both men and women. One out of every four UM students is participating in the intramural basketball program this winter. The public image of the student is being improved through the efforts of President Garry South and the activities of ASUM. Improved relations with alumni and state tax payers is very important at this crisis time for the university system. Such groups as Masquers, Jazz Workshop, Montana Dance Company Orchestras and others are travelling throughout the state providing entertainment and good spirit to the people. The student lobby effort is building for the future and, with the aid of Legislative Committee and the Montana Kaimin, reporters are keeping the campus up to date with all the business in Helena. Student Action Center under new directorship is alive and well, ready to help students with consumer ripoffs, landlord hassles and other problems. The list of activities goes on, yet we cannot afford to live on these accomplishments.

Our new library is grossly inadequate in terms of books and equipment. A search committee is looking for a new University president. Our legislature is still trying to decide if women are members of the same genus species as men (somewhat like the reluctance to grant human equality to the racial minorities in America). The Blue Ribbon Commission on Post-Secondary Education is coming to Missoula on the 24th of January hoping to get some student input into the plight of the university system. Vice President Richard Landini is working to re-organize UM and is asking everyone's support and advice. Most students are trying to get an education and now even get to see the sunrise whether they like it or not.

There is much to be done, I ask you to come and join the journey and struggle to build a better university community. We may be looked upon as "apprentice politicians" but our mission for the most part is to serve you.

Equality and privilege

Editor: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

The question before the Montana Senate is simply this: will we have a nation of equality or will we have one of privilege?

As it is, we have a nation of privilege. Women are given privileges at the expense of men—alimony, for instance. Men are given privileges at the expense of women—in some states married men have control of the family finances including anything their wives make. The privileges see-saw back and forth. Some would say it's the men who have their feet on the ground and it's the women who are left dangling and helpless. Others would say it's just about even. But that's the trouble with privilege. One can never know if one privilege really balances out another. Unlike equality.

Another difference between privilege and equality. Equality is a right. A privilege can be taken away as easily as it can be granted. And if someone takes away one's privilege there's not much one can do except ask, request, plead or beg that it be given back.

But if someone takes away one's right there is something she or he can do: fight for it.

Student dislikes Pettit

Editor: I thought I heard a very loud burp the other day, which I later decided was just Larry Pettit on the UM campus.

Pettit obviously did not consider the fact that raising tuition might save the University but it might also put a pinch on the style of students; especially us who need "approximately 17 six-packs" to keep from punching loud-mouths who know nothing and take every opportunity to prove it.

Woodahl's action legally right

Editor: Usually a typical apathetic UM student, Thomas Felt's letter in last Thursday's Montana Kaimin demands a response. To present such half-truths as justification for a position is ludicrous.

In this letter, it is claimed that the attempt to impeach the President is not political. It is not political because it is not affiliated with a specific political party. While this claim of non-partisanship is itself debatable, it in no way detracts from the political nature of the committee. Any attempt to elect or eject an elected officeholder is undeniably political.

Next, he states Woodahl has usurped the powers of both the Board of Regents and of the ASUM. There are only two flaws in the logic leading to this statement.

(1) It is Mr. Woodahl's job to monitor the spending of state money, to assure its legality, and that is all he's done, his job, nothing more. The ethics involved are something else, but legally he couldn't usurp power that is already his.

Leroy Berven countered this by claiming the ASUM monies are not state funds. They are fees paid by the students to ASUM. Not so. When I paid tuition I made one check to the state, of which they then allotted money for the students use. The ASUM is dependent on this allotment, over which the state has control, for its finances, not directly on the students. Therefore it is state money.

(2) ASUM and for that matter the Board of Regents themselves don't have any inherent powers. They have only those powers specifically granted them by the powers that be in Helena. If those in Helena decide to revoke any powers held by ASUM they can. (Again the ethics of such a move are questionable, to say the least, but it could be done, if in no other way by closing UM.)

The above does not mean I am a gung-ho Nixonite, which I am not, or that I approve of Woodahl's veto, which I do not. But at least let's keep out discussion to the facts and not open it to irrational, emotional tirades.

The federal government has plans to use Montana. Under a plan called "Project Independence," sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), Montana would produce, process and transport from 15 to 25 million tons of coal over a five-year period. In return, the state would receive the technical knowledge of federal reclamation experiments which will be carried out in conjunction with the strip mining program.

A representative of the AEC met last week in Helena with coal industry officials, state officials concerned with the state's environmental matters and scientists from three national laboratories.

Participants in the discussions, for the most part, agreed that one strip mining operation would not be enough. To demonstrate different reclamation methods, they said, would take strip mines in at least two areas—one with good reclamation potential and another with poor potential—each mining three to five million tons of coal a year over a five year period.

If the federal government decides Montana is the place to carry out the experiment, and indications are that at least one of the mines will be in Montana, what chance will Montanans have to say "no"? The three-day meetings did give Montanans on the Energy Advisory Council, in the State Department of Lands, and professors from three Montana universities a chance to comment on the federal strip mining project.

Project Independence has as its goal, according to the AEC, "to demonstrate to the world a national commitment to achieve a capacity for energy self-sufficiency as soon as possible."

The plan is aimed at extracting coal. Probably, as a bone for environmental dogs, the federal agency has included, as a goal for the "Western Coal Extraction" section of the project a goal "to demonstrate the feasibility of effective land restoration and redevelopment following surface mining in the semi-arid Western coal fields." The agency goes on to report, "A convincing demonstration of successful land reclamation would help greatly to overcome resistance to an expanded surface-mining industry in the West."

On Feb. 1, Thomas Gross, AEC representative, will submit findings and opinions gleaned from the three-day meeting and a tour of the Eastern Montana coal fields to the AEC in Washington.

Among the opinions will be one from Lt. Gov. Bill Christiansen which says the plan is acceptable if the state has some in-put into the planning and monitoring of the project. The question is, however, will the state's request be met?

A University of Montana professor, Clancy Gordon, said since "they're going to take the coal one way or another, we are going to have to be able to reclaim the land. We don't have the funds and in some cases the manpower to carry out comprehensive and intelligent reclamation."

The ideas expressed by these two men, as well as other Montanans at the discussions, indicated that the state, if used by the federal government, should in turn use the federal government to research land restoration. But the federal government, and the coal company or companies mining the coal, might not have the same ideas for reclamation. During the meetings, ideas differed as to reclaiming for productivity or restoring to the natural state which is capable of maintaining itself.

If the state and federal government learn that the land cannot be restored, that the hydrology of the area is irreparably harmed, and the social and economic effects of the large scale coal mines had harmful effects on the state, the coal will have been mined. The state's usefulness to the rest of the nation will be quickly forgotten and the state will be stuck with a myriad of environmental, social and economic problems.

It is true, as Christiansen said, that if the land cannot be restored and the problems are defined, even as unsolvable, the state can refuse future strip mining permits. But what price must be paid for the knowledge?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by Jack Anderson

The federal energy office has announced an investigation into oil profits.

Rather than wait for the results, we have conducted our own investigation. We have talked to sources inside the big oil companies and managed to obtain corporate papers which were never intended to be read outside the executive suites. Here are our findings:

The oil companies definitely have squeezed higher profits for themselves from the oil shortage. For example, the Persian Gulf countries have increased their oil income by doubling the taxes and royalties from three dollars to seven dollars a barrel.

The oil companies, however, are permitted to charge off these payments, dollar for dollar, against their U.S. taxes. Then the companies add the foreign tax to the price of the oil. In other words, the consumers really pay the overseas tax increase, but the companies take credit for it on their U.S. returns.

The oil companies have also used the shortage as an excuse to cut back some of the products that aren't too profitable. The oil industry produces around 3,000 products, some of them vital to other industries. Now oil companies are channeling the available oil into the products that make the most money for themselves.

The majors are also closing their less profitable gas stations and putting the squeeze on independently-owned stations. This means the oil shortage will wind up increasing the profits that the big companies get from their retail outlets.

So far, the oil shortage has been a bonanza for most companies. Only their customers are hurting.

Watergate Whirlpool: Some of our most respected government agencies have been caught in the Watergate whirlpool. The Central Intelligence Agency became a cover for laundrying campaign cash in Mexico. The former FBI director destroyed incriminating evidence in his fireplace. The Secret Service has been accused of ordering millions of dollars worth of improvements on President Nixon's private homes.

But the agency which has been hurt the most—and the one that can least afford it—is the Internal Revenue Service. The American people pay their taxes on the honor system. We suffer in silence on the assumption everyone else is doing the same.

Over the past year, however, we have learned that the President got away with paying less taxes than the average working family. Anyone else who had virtually wiped out his taxes with huge deductions would have been subjected to a thorough audit. Yet all Nixon received was a whitewash.

Now the President has invited a joint congressional committee to review his taxes. Our sources inside the IRS say this made the agency nervous. Fearing congressional sleuths might find something its own agents had missed, the IRS hastily ordered a reaudit of the President's tax returns.

Our sources say the agents are taking a particularly close look at the financing of Nixon's San Clemente estate. The President bought the estate with money loaned to him by his millionaire friend, Robert Abplanalp, who canceled the debt in return for a deed to a part of the property. Yet the President wound up with the most valuable section and he has been using Abplanalp's portion rent-free.

Our sources confide that the President is almost sure to have to pay some back taxes.

The attorney for a man convicted of the identical crime which Spiro Agnew committed has filed an appeal—arguing that sending his client to jail, while Agnew remains free, is "unfair."

Attorney Harold Arcaro, representing 63-year-old Abner Silverman, has called on a Rhode Island federal judge to reverse his sentence. Silverman pleaded guilty last week to one count of tax evasion. However, unlike Agnew, he was not only fined, but sentenced to three months in the federal pen.

Arcaro charged that jailing his client in the tax case "in the climate created" by the Agnew case would "engender a general disrespect for the law."

Judge Ryamond Pettine said he would consider the motion and hand down a final decision within the next 120 days.

Higher education complaints requested

Montanans will get a chance to present their views on higher education to the state's Blue Ribbon Commission on Post-Secondary Education in the first of several public hearings scheduled for January, February and March in 11 Montana cities.

"The public is going to be asked to give the Commission its views, its comments, its criticisms on post-secondary education in Montana," George Bousliman, deputy director of the Commission, said Friday.

"It is going to be a free-wheeling forum. Anybody from the public, any student, or faculty is going to have an opportunity to be heard on what they consider to be the issues and the problems of post-secondary education," he said.

The Commission originally intended to have only one set of public hearings in the summer after the commission's preliminary report was completed by the staff and technical committees, Bousliman said. At its last business meeting, the Commission decided to schedule an additional set of public hearings for more public input, he said.

The public hearings begin Jan. 24 in Billings and continue on a weekly basis through March. In addition to Billings, public hearings are scheduled for: Bozeman, Feb. 7; Butte, Feb. 14; Glasgow, Feb. 21; Glendive, Feb. 28; Great Falls, March 7; Havre, March 14; Helena, March 19; Kalispell, March 21; Dillon, March 26, and Missoula, March 28.

Pantzer has high expectations for new University President

President Robert Pantzer said yesterday he hopes the new president of the University of Montana will combine a knowledge of both the academic world and the business world. He added that "the problem with the presidency is that no one individual will have all of the qualifications that are expressed by the search committee."

Pantzer said he is not participating as a member of the presidential search committee because he does not want to push his views on them. However, he is not remaining entirely aloof. His interest and concern for the university keep him involved, he said. He was also asked by Larry Pettit, commissioner of higher education, to submit his ideas for a position description.

In his description of the job, Pantzer said while some authority and control were held by the Board of Regents and the Commissioner of Higher Education, "the President is responsible for the on-going development of the University and fostering the accomplishment of its missions and goals, including curriculum development." Pantzer added that "nurturing the teaching, research and service functions of the institution," and preparing and managing budgets were also important aspects of the job.

Pantzer said he hoped the University would continue as a broad liberal arts school capable of producing students with broad and inquiring minds. He said he thinks the school has a good balance of various kinds of education now, but should always be open to innovation. He added that future direction of the university "is very much up to the Commission on Post Secondary Education."

It is reported that in 1933, New York gangster Vito "Kid Blade" Batista was held in protective custody in a jail in Butte, Montana. It was felt he was the safest there because many members of the New York Mafia did not know where Montana was.

Sullivan to take leave of absence

Robert Sullivan, law school dean, will begin a five and one-half month leave of absence February 16. Sullivan said he plans to visit 12 law schools in the Pacific Northwest to examine different methods of operation. He will also go to Ireland to lecture on the American judicial system, consumer credit, and oil and gas laws. He said his plans include researching and writing about consumer credit.

Sullivan said he will meet with president Robert Pantzer next week to appoint an acting law school dean during his absence.

House bill would allow death penalty

Montana Kaimin Legislative Bureau Helena

A person shall "be killed upon conviction of 'aggravated kidnapping' in which the victim dies as 'the result of criminal conduct,' if HB 643 is passed into law.

The House gave tentative approval to the bill yesterday on a 74 to 21 vote. The bill amends a present statute which reads the death penalty shall be imposed "unless there are mitigating circumstances."

Debate on the bill centered around the morality of capital punishment, and whether it actually deterred crime.

Compared to a vote by the people on whether to provide for a death penalty in the new constitution, a percentage of the representatives failed to be representative. The vote on the death penalty on June 6, 1972, was 147,023 or about 65 per cent for and 77,733 or 35 per cent against.

The vote in the house was about 79 per cent for and 21 per cent against with six not voting.

Three Republicans voted against the bill, including Reps. Gary Marbut and George Turman of Missoula. Other Missoula representatives voting against the bill were Democrats Gary Kimble, Max Baucus and Bob Watt.

Board of Regents to consider student fee increases Monday

A proposed increase in student fees will be voted on at a special meeting of the Board of Regents of Higher Education Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Helena.

An 11 per cent increase in resident fees—about $25 a year—and a 13 per cent increase in non-resident fees—about $133 a year—was proposed by Lawrence Pettit, commissioner of higher education, at Monday's meeting in Missoula.

A decision on the fee increase was postponed to allow time for the regents to gather additional information about the measure from students, university presidents, and faculty members.

Pettit suggested Tuesday that the Board might vote on the increase next Monday, only a week after it was originally proposed.

He said one week should be sufficient time for students, university presidents and faculty members to react to the proposed increase.

Robert Pantzer, University of Montana, president, said yesterday he would not attend the special regents meeting but would mail a letter detailing his feelings to the board.

Pantzer said he and the other presidents believe an increase in student fees should be passed only as a last alternative.

Harvey declared unfit to stand trial

Larry Harvey alleged assailant of Mercedes Gavin, a former UM student, has been declared unfit to stand trial. A hearing has been scheduled for April to enter this into evidence.

Harvey is now in the Missoula County Jail. He was returned to Missoula by sheriff deputies from Warm Springs State Hospital after undergoing psychological tests for 28 days.

Harvey, 30, who stabbed Gavin October 5, was declared unfit to stand trial, Robert Deschamps, county attorney, said Monday.

Harvey, a transient from Coffeyville, Kan., stabbed Gavin at the corner of Fifth and Van Buren streets, and then tried to attack Sharon Gavin, former student at UM. Harvey was subdued by two UM students, William Coburn, junior in forestry, and Arthur Corcoran, junior in history and political science.

AP in brief

Israel and Egypt reached a compromise agreement yesterday calling for a phased pullback of Israeli forces from the Suez Canal in exchange for limitation of Egyptian military strength on the waterway's east bank. The accord, worked out by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a week of shuttling between the two October war foes, will be signed at noon Friday at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road by the Israeli and Egyptian military commanders.

The Federal Energy Office named 10 metropolitan areas yesterday whose licensed drivers probably would get the lowest gasoline rations under the administration's proposed rationing plan. Listed in the category to get 20 per cent less gasoline than the nationwide standard: Atlanta; Baltimore; Boston; Chicago and suburban Des Plaines; Evanston and Gary; Milwaukee; New York and Newark; Philadelphia; San Francisco-Oakland; New Orleans; and Honolulu.

Five Western states began cleaning up yesterday from flooding and other bad weather that killed upward of a dozen people, but faced the forecast of more rain and snow again Friday. In Montana, Gov. Thomas Judge declared the community of Libby and Lincoln County a disaster area. Damage there was estimated in the millions of dollars.

Supporters of Sen. Walter F. Mondale yesterday announced formation of a committee to finance his exploration of a 1976 presidential bid. Mondale, D-Minn., has been making numerous appearances around the country and has acknowledged that he is taking a look at the 1976 race.

Testimony that one of the Watergate tapes was erased and rerecorded is not sufficient grounds to impeach President, Vice President Gerald R. Ford said yesterday. "I think it's premature to jump in on the testimony of six witnesses, who may or may not be upheld, and call for impeachment," he told a news conference in his home town.

The bodies of three young mountaineers killed in an avalanche in northwest Wyoming's Grand Teton Mountain range were taken from the mountain by helicopter yesterday. The three students from the National Outdoor Leadership School in Lander died late Wednesday afternoon while on a winter mountaineering expedition.

The nation's economy, which started 1973 with a near-record rate of growth, ended the year with the lowest growth rate in three years, 1.3 per cent, the government reported yesterday. Inflation soared to 7.9 per cent in the last three months of 1973, the highest quarterly increase in the rate of inflation in 22 years.

Black Studies to offer lecture series

"A Search for Identity," is the title of a new Monday night lecture series being offered this quarter by the Black Studies program, for students and persons in the Missoula community.

Ulysses S. Doss, director of the Black Studies dept., said he is trying to share "what we understand our experience to be."

The Black studies department wants people to see the problems of racism, and to understand the culture and the experience of being black, Doss said.

Doss said that he receives at least four requests a week for him or some member of his staff to speak to various groups. He had so many requests that he felt a need for a coordinator to keep track of the engagements, he said.

Last quarter Doss spoke in Butte, Billings, the Ark, several churches, a fraternity and two sororities. These requests have come from many different sources, primarily former students, Doss said.

Doss's lectures will be in the Natural Science Building, room 306, from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The department will also offer a puppet show for children on Saturdays at a yet undetermined location from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Indian Studies budget lean, Whiteman says

The Indian Studies program is under-funded, "just like any other department," Henrietta Whiteman, Indian Studies director and assistant professor, said yesterday.

The administration allocated Indian Studies $37,121 this year. Subtracting the salaries of Whiteman, Robert Swan, assistant director and counselor advisor, and the staff secretary, leaves only about $4,000 to operate the program, Swan said.

Indian Studies has received a supplement of $300 from the administration to cover telephone bills, Whiteman said.

Because of inadequate funding of Indian Studies, Whiteman said she is the only faculty member and her contract requires her to divide her time between administering the program and teaching.

Whiteman taught nine credit hours last quarter with extensive independent study supervision of 24 other students. Swan pointed out that the average credit load for a full-time professor is about ten credit hours.

"We have a whole series of classes we'd like to offer but can offer only every other year because of the faculty shortage," Whiteman said.

A law passed by last year's legislature, requiring American Indian Studies to be part of the educational background of public school teachers employed on, or near Indian reservations, has kept the Indian Studies Program busy, Swan said.

Indian Studies has been asked to provide extension courses around the state and summer courses for teachers.

The legislature is currently considering a bill, HB 501, which would require all teachers in Montana elementary, secondary, and vocational-educational programs to have an American Indian culture background.

Missoula legislator proposes increased hunting license fees

Helena

A Missoula legislator introduced two bills in the Senate Wednesday—dealing with hunting fees and a new state flag—which could raise some eyebrows around the state.

Sen. Harry Northey, D-Missoula, tossed into the hopper a measure increasing many resident and nonresident hunting and fishing license fees. Northey proposed a $5 fee for the resident game bird license (was $2); deer licenses would go from $3 to $7; elk, from $3 to $10; black or brown bear licenses from $5 to $6, and nonresident deer licenses from $35 to $50. Several license fees will remain the same under Northey's proposal, including the $5 resident fishing license and, moose, $50 and the $25 nonresident fishing license.

Northey also suggested Montana adopt a new flag, resplendent with three horizontal stripes of sky blue, white and forest green. The upper hoist corner would hold three white mountain peaks. A similar bill failed last session.

The Senate Majority and Minority Leaders, Neil Lynch, D-Butte, and Jim Moore, R-Two Dot, asked their colleagues to approve a bill that would appropriate $15,600 to the University of Montana Law School to conduct a justice of the peace orientation course.

A companion bill takes the responsibility for the course from the Montana Magistrate's Association and gives it to the UM Law School. Newly-elected JPs must take the four-week course if he or she is not an attorney or has not held the office within the preceding five years.

Three Missoula senators asked the legislature to approve an appropriation of $1,612,800 for construction at the vocational-technical school in Missoula. Sens. G. W. Deschamps, Fred Carl, and Harry Northey, all Republicans, sponsored the bill, SB 614.

Wrestlers face Northern today

The University of Montana wrestling team returns to action this weekend against Northern Montana College 6 p.m. Friday night in the Field House and against Western and Eastern Montana College in a triangular meet Saturday in Dillon.

UM Wrestling Coach Jerry Downey says that the Christmas vacation "hurt the team. It will be like starting all over again." Downey said some of the wrestlers didn't have an opportunity to wrestle or stay in shape over the holidays and that this would hurt them when it came time to wrestle against Northern.

Northern "has a good team, but I think we can outwrestle them," Downey said.

Downey said that the two schools at the meet in Dillon have good wrestlers and that it will be hard for UM to win as a team because the Montana team has no wrestlers in the heavyweight class and will have to forfeit those matches.

Swimmers open season today

The UM swim team begins its season today at 2:30 p.m. at Grizzly Pool when it meets the swim team of the College of Great Falls.

Fred Stetson, UM swim coach, said that the program at the Great Falls school is in the building process and has no outstanding swimmers. "I don't think we'll have much trouble with them," he said. "It's just a warm-up meet for us. They are bringing down about seven or eight guys to compete with us, and as many girls, who will compete against older girls from the Missoula Swim Club. We'll be taking down some times for our swimmers just to see what kind of condition we are in at this point."

Montana has won the Big Sky Conference swimming title eight years in a row, and will face its first conference competition Feb. 2 when Weber State comes to Missoula for a dual swim meet.

Spectators are admitted free to all UM swim meets.

Stetson said that he is in need of about 18 persons to work as timers at the meet. These people are to report to Grizzly Pool at 2 p.m.

It is estimated that 1.07 per cent of the babies born in the United States are twins. Twenty per cent of these are said to be twins of the identical type.

Multi-media show features Beatles

A multi-media presentation of "The Beatles: Away With Words" will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in the Hellgate auditorium.

The presentation uses 29 slide projectors, four movie projectors, eight public address systems and 6,000 slides operated by a computer.

The film follows a roughly chronological pattern of the Beatles development and applies Beatle music to observation of their phenomenon and the world as it was during those years.

Three performances are scheduled per night, at 6, 8, and 10 p.m. Advance tickets are $2.50 ($3.00 at the door) and are on sale at the Mercantile Record Shop, Bo Legs, Sound West, and KYLT radio.

Pool hours set

Grizzly Pool is open to the University community 7 to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 2 to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, according to Pool Manager Fred Stetson.

Stetson said that students should check with the Pool for weekend swimming because it sometimes closes for special events.

He said University women can swim Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 1 to 2 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday, 9 to 10 a.m.

Students without validated ID cards must pay 65 cents for admission.

Coming Soon! Elliott Gould in "The Long Good-bye"

Blown Dead

by Bruce Saylor

The basketball team has now developed a 6-7 record. This shoots the Hell out of Coach Heathcote's 20-6 final season prediction. Unfortunately, had it not been for some bad luck, normal Big Sky Conference lousy officiating and poor performances in key situations, the Grizzlies could very easily be 10-3.

Several players have shown sparks of talent in play this season. Center Ken McKenzie has developed a fine hook shot which he does not use very often. However he has been the cause of extensive damage to the new field house floor. Coach Heathcote has set off several rounds of dynamite trying to get McKenzie to move.

Forward Eric Hays has been amazing people with his ability to rebound. Hays stands only 6'4" which is small for a collegiate forward. Hays has also had important scoring streaks, contributing 20 in the Portland State game which turned out to be the winning margin.

Forward Larry Smedley is a fine shooter, but has not fully recovered from a shoulder separation sustained last fall. The injury has considerably weakened his performance on the boards.

Guard Ben DeMers has been a pleasant surprise to many Grizzly spectators. The freshman has made the transition from high school basketball to major college basketball quite rapidly. DeMers still makes costly mistakes attributed to his inexperience, but his assets far outnumber his deficits in playing ability. DeMers leads the Conference in free throw shooting and has a string of 16 without a miss going into tonight's game.

Guard Robin Selvig was supposed to provide the veteran leadership for the squad this season. Selvig suffered a knee injury his sophomore year and has not fully recovered. The injury slowed down a very talented basketball player. Selvig has appeared this year to be unsure of himself until the pressure is poured on. He seems to play best when the game gets tight.

Several other Grizzlies have played well in reserve roles. Kevin Rocheleau sees as much action as anyone on the starting lineup. Scott Hollenbeck and Tom Peck have come off of the bench to provide spark during lagging moments.

Missoula orchestra to give performance

The Missoula Symphony Orchestra will perform at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the University Theater.

The orchestra will perform "Lenore Overture No. 3" by Ludwig van Beethoven, "Concerto in A minor for Piano and Orchestra" by Robert Schuman, and "Gloria" by Francis Poulenc. The first two compositions will be conducted by Eugene Andrie. The third one will be conducted by Georges Lewis.

"Concerto in A minor for Piano and Orchestra" will feature Dennis Alexander on the piano. Alexander received his formal music training at the University of Kansas. After receiving his M.A. degree in piano, with honors, he joined the faculty at the University of Kansas where he taught from 1970 to 1972. Alexander joined the faculty at the University of Montana in September 1972.

This is the second of four concerts planned by the Missoula Symphony Orchestra and Chorale this season. The next two concerts will be performed on March 3, and April 21.

Tickets will be sold at the door. Students with valid ID's will receive a discount.

Story corrected

The Field house basketball arena will not be open to the public on weekends as the headline in yesterday's Kaimin implied. It is open to the University community only, during normal recreation hours on weekends and to jogging on week-nights from 6-9 p.m.

On days of intercollegiate athletics in the arena, or other special events, the arena will be closed at 3 p.m., not 4 p.m. as in yesterday's Kaimin.

Recreation annex closes at 11 p.m. weeknights.

Freshmen to play experienced teams

The University of Montana freshman basketball team will be facing tough competition this weekend according to their coach, Jim Brandenburg.

The Cubs will face North Idaho Junior College on Friday, and Whitworth College Junior Varsity on Saturday. Both games start at 5:30 p.m.

Brandenburg said both teams have several sophomores and Whitworth has even a few juniors, so will have more experience than the Cubs all freshman team. He said that Idaho and Whitworth will also have more height, with several players at 6'-9".

Brandenburg said the Cubs will again have a disadvantage because of injuries. Bruce Groesbeck, 6'2" guard, will be out with a knee injury, and Mike Richardson, 6'7" forward, and Tom Rondeau, 6'1" guard, are still not at full strength after ankle injuries.

The Cubs' starting line-up will consist of forwards Richardson and Mike Steinberg, center Gordon Darby and guards Rondeau and Ted Ori.

Steinburg is leading the Cubs in scoring, followed closely by Groesbeck.

The Cubs' have posted a 2-4 record this season and will be looking to even it up this weekend.

Grizzlies to take rest from Conference play

Montana takes time off from league play this weekend to face independent schools College of Great Falls and University of Puget Sound from Tacoma, Wash.

Grizzly coach Jud Heathcote said "We can't take either of these clubs lightly. We don't want the College of Great Falls to sneak up on us and the one point loss to Puget Sound in Tacoma is still fresh on our minds. We expect to win both ball games, but it won't be an easy task."

The Argonauts of Great Falls take a 14-4 record into Friday night's game after a big win Tuesday over Western Montana College. The Argos bring a powerful front line to the Harry Adams Field House. Forward Aaron Smith, 6-3 senior, is averaging 21.5 points each game. Although he broke his nose last week in a game against Carroll College, he played against Western and will play here. Forward Craig Bonnarens, 6-7 junior, is averaging 17 points and 14.25 rebounds each game.

CGF Coach Ray Dodds said, "This game always looms as one of the biggest of the year for us. It's never easy to take the Grizzlies in their own den. We will really need a super effort from all concerned to stay with them."

Heathcote commented, "Through the years CGF has demonstrated that it is a small college power in the state and I am sure they are pointing to beating a major college team like us. Bonnarens is an excellent rebounder and Smith can turn a game around by himself when he is having a hot shooting night."

Puget Sound's Loggers beat Montana 69-68 in their encounter last month. The Loggers suffered a slow start this season and come here with a 5-9 record. However, they have won three of their last four games.

"Puget Sound has a strong forward wall in forwards Sam May, Fred Cain and center Dave Johnson," Heathcote said. "Cain is a big scorer (15.9 points per game), May is a starter from last year who did not play in our first meeting and Johnson is an aggressive freshman center. We will have to play well to win."

Montana will use the same starting lineup it has used most of the season, Heathcote said. Robin Selvig, who received a knee injury in the game against Idaho last Friday, turned out for practice Wednesday and will be ready for the weekend contests along with other starters Ken McKenzie, Eric Hays, Larry Smedley, and Ben DeMers.

The two upcoming games begin the second half of the 1973-74 basketball season for the Grizzlies. Beginning tonight, the 'Tips will have 10 of their last 13 games in the Harry Adams Field House. The team is 4-0 in home games and 2-7 on the road, with a Big Sky conference record of 1-3 after splitting a pair of games against Idaho and Gonzaga last weekend.

"It is a good feeling to have the bulk of our road contests behind us, but I am disappointed we don't have a better record," Heathcote said.

Both Grizzly games will be broadcast by KUVM radio. Air time is 7:20 each night.

THE FUTURE OF UNITED STATES SPACE EXPLORATION

(Columbia Television & Stereo's $385.00 Stereo system)

More than you expect for less than you expected.

Stereo systems in the $400 price range, while not unpleasant to listen to, have not as a rule provided that last bit of musical accuracy for those who take their listening very seriously. Our $385.00 Advent/Marantz/Garrard/Shure stereo system has changed all that, as many of our critical and satisfied customers who own it will testify.

The Smaller Advent loudspeakers are a startling speaker bargain, of which highly respected Stereo Review Magazine said, "Any preconceived ideas you may have about the limitations of sub-compact speaker systems will, we think, be shattered." The Marantz MD 1030 stereo amplifier provides sufficient power (over 30 RMS watts of it) to handle the most tortuous musical passages in the average living room. The Garrard 42M automatic turntable with a Shure M75E cartridge and diamond stylus will treat your records gently and add no unpleasant sounds of its own.

Together, these remarkable components cost just $385 — a saving of $40 over their usual individual prices. If you've thought that a stereo system in this price range couldn't provide quite enough sonic satisfaction, we invite you to visit Columbia Television & Stereo and learn otherwise.
